

Maja D. Hazell

Maja D. Hazell Maja D. Hazell is a managing director of D. E. Shaw & Co., L.P. and Head of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion for the D. E. Shaw group. Prior to joining the firm in 2021, Ms. Hazell was global head of diversity and inclusion at White & Case LLP, where she advised clients, global partners, and senior leaders across practice areas, business units, functions, and industry groups on embedding DEI in their business strategies and talent goals. She previously served as director of diversity and inclusion at Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson LLP and as an assistant dean for career development at the Elisabeth Haub School of Law at Pace University. Ms. Hazell began her career as an associate at Simpson Thacher & Bartlett, where she advised executives, purchasers, targets, financial advisors, and management groups on labor and employment, compensation, and benefits issues in corporate policies, procedures, and transactions. She received her J.D. from the Georgetown University Law Center and her B.A. in English from Yale University. Ms. Hazell is a member of the diversity council of the Practising Law Institute. She is also a former member of the executive board of the New York Urban League; former president of the Association of Law Firm Diversity Professionals; founding member of the board of advisors to the Leadership Institute of the Council of Urban Professionals for pipeline development in finance, media, and law; and former member of the Hunter College Presidential Pre-Law Advisory Board and diversity committees of the New York City Bar Association. Ms. Hazell is a trained executive leadership coach and Society for Human Resources Management Senior Certified Professional.